CLINICAL REVIEWS

The injured worker: assessing "return-to-work" status 166

Psychological, economic, social, and legal factors are often as important as physical findings in a return-to-work assessment.

D.J. MAZANEC

Recognizing and treating new and emerging infections encountered in everyday practice 172

The clinical presentation, diagnosis, and treatment of seven emerging infections that primary care physicians are likely to encounter.

S.M. GORDON

EDITORIAL

Shark cartilage: the Laetrile of the 1990s 179

Shark cartilage, like Laetrile, high-dose vitamin C, and coffee enemas, provides patients with emotional support, but does nothing to the cancer.

M. MARKMAN

CURRENT DRUG THERAPY

■ DONALD G. VIDT, EDITOR

The clinical role of platelet glycoprotein IIb/IIIa receptor inhibitors in ischemic heart disease 181

These new drugs show great promise in reducing the complications of angioplasty and acute coronary syndromes.
