Back to the basics on pressure and fat 691

Sometimes we may be too smart about the nuances of clinical science and get distracted from our goal of improving patient outcomes.

B. F. MANDELL

REVIEW

The two faces of the 'good' cholesterol 697

Ordinarily anti-inflammatory and protective, HDL sometimes becomes proinflammatory. Thus, the functional properties—not simply the level—may need to be considered and optimized.

B. J. ANSELL

EDITORIAL

Exposing the complexity of HDL 709

HDL is a heterogeneous population of particles, and we should not be surprised if these particles differ in their effect on the arterial wall.

S. J. NICHOLLS

REVIEW

Update on adolescent immunization: Pertussis, meningococcus, HPV, and the future 714

Preteens and teenagers will be getting more shots. The extra visits will give us another opportunity to talk to these young people about high-risk behavior.

REVIEW.....

Diagnostic strategies for suspected pulmonary arterial hypertension: A primer for the internist 737

If not recognized early, pulmonary arterial hypertension can have devastating consequences. Recent advances have led to improved diagnostic strategies.

O.A. MINAI AND M.M. BUDEV

REVIEW.....

What is adequate hypertension control? Having your dinner and dessert too 748

Controlling the blood pressure per se should be our primary concern (“dinner”), while choosing agents that may have added benefit in specific situations is secondary (“dessert”).

J.W. GRAVES

COMMENTARY.....

The Women’s Health Initiative and hormone therapy, 5 years later 755

“Although I knew then that we were in for a big change, I did not anticipate the total impact.”

COMMENTARY.....

Vulnerable patients are between a ‘ROC and a hard place’: Yes, it’s time to screen for coronary artery disease 757

In the September 2007 issue, Dr. Michael Lauer rejected the recently proposed Screening for Heart Attack prevention and Education (SHAPE) guidelines. The authors of the SHAPE guidelines would like to address his arguments.
