Chronic centralized pain syndromes: A rheumatologist's perspective 201

Centralized pain syndromes are vexing for patients and clinicians. In this issue, Volcheck and colleagues present a framework for understanding chronic centralized pain and for developing an actionable treatment plan for patients.

Brian F. Mandell, MD, PhD

THE CLINICAL PICTURE

Brodie abscess in an 87-year-old man 205

Though Brodie abscess is rare in older adults, timely diagnosis and treatment can prevent exacerbation of the abscess and avoid the need for additional surgical treatment, shortening the duration of hospitalization and preventing long-term complications.

Masumi Suzuki Shimizu, MD; Kohsuke Matsui, MD

REVIEW

Diagnosis and management of ascites, spontaneous bacterial peritonitis, and hepatorenal syndrome 209

A review of recommendations from the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases.

Sarah Khan, MD; Maureen Linganna, MD

GUIDELINES TO PRACTICE

Heart failure with reduced ejection fraction: What's new in the 2022 guideline? 215

Evidence-based and guideline-based medical therapies can help patients feel better, stay out of the hospital, live longer, and potentially improve left ventricular function.

Michelle M. Kittleson, MD, PhD

COMMENTARY

Paternalism in practice: How we create obstacles for sexual, reproductive, and menopausal healthcare despite our best intentions 227

In theory, we all understand the concept of shared decision-making. But in practice, clinical recommendations are often still dictated rather than discussed.

Pelin Batur, MD, FACP, NCMP

REVIEW

Reproductive issues and multiple sclerosis: 20 questions 235

The authors offer answers to frequently asked questions about the management of MS during pregnancy planning, pregnancy, and the postpartum period.
