Functional health illiteracy: What patients don’t know can hurt them

Patient education has become a discipline in itself, and physicians need to take better advantage of it.

J.D. Clough

1-MINUTE CONSULT

Brief answers to specific clinical questions

Intravenous or oral steroids: Which is better for acute exacerbations of asthma or COPD?

For asthma, oral steroids appear to be as effective as intravenous. For COPD, we have less evidence.

C. Eimerman

CANCER DIAGNOSIS AND MANAGEMENT

Assessing cancer clinical trials: Will your patient benefit from a ‘breakthrough’?

Pick up a newspaper or turn on the news, and you will see a story about some breakthrough in cancer. So will your patients.

M. Markman

INTERPRETING KEY TRIALS

The CURE trial: Using clopidogrel in acute coronary syndromes without ST-segment elevation

An important advance, but at the cost of excess bleeding.

REVIEW

Two new treatment options for infections due to drug-resistant gram-positive cocci

Drug-resistant gram-positive cocci are on the rise, including VRE and MRSA strains. Synercid and Zyvox are welcome and needed, but they should not be used empirically.

S.J. REHM

MEDICAL GRAND ROUNDS

Recognizing and overcoming inadequate health literacy, a barrier to care

A shocking number of patients cannot read adequately or understand medical concepts, with adverse consequences for their health.

M.V. WILLIAMS

The new American diet and the changing face of foodborne illness

Foodborne illness isn’t just about bad potato salad any more.

A.J. TAEGE

HEART FAILURE UPDATE

ACE inhibitors vs ARBs: Is one class better for heart failure?

A patient who apparently cannot tolerate ACE inhibitors presents with worsening heart failure. What should be the next step?

M.E. DUNLAP AND R.C. PETERSON

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Smallpox vaccination, a homeless man with hypothermia.
