TABLE OF CONTENTS

FROM THE EDITOR

A DASH of prevention 682

The DASH diet is clearly a useful tool for lowering blood pressure in dedicated patients.

J.D. CLOUGH

IM BOARD REVIEW

A 48-year-old woman with nausea, vomiting, early satiety, and weight loss 693

She has lost 20 pounds in the last 1 1/2 years. What is the cause, and what is the treatment?

M.A. QADEER, AND C.A. BURKE

1-MINUTE CONSULT

Atrial fibrillation: When is rate control enough? 713

This seems like a straightforward question, but it is not.

E.B. SAAD AND R.A. SCHWEIKERT

MEDICAL GRAND ROUNDS

Benign paroxysmal positional vertigo: How to diagnose and quickly treat it 722

The most common cause of dizziness in the elderly can be diagnosed and treated with a simple maneuver that can quickly be performed in the office.

J. WHITE

REVIEW

Homocysteine: Is it a clinically important cardiovascular risk factor? 729

The jury is still out as to whether homocysteine is a cause, consequence, or marker of cardiovascular disease. B vitamins lower homocysteine levels; whether they reduce risk is also unknown, but they are cheap and safe.

S.R. LENTZ AND W.G. HAYNES

REVIEW

Hypertension treatment in African Americans: Physiology is less important than sociology 735

Social, cultural, and economic barriers to care are probably more important than any true physiologic differences between races.

D. MARTINS AND K. NORRIS

INTERPRETING KEY TRIALS

The DASH diet for high blood pressure: From clinical trial to dinner table 745

Eating right lowers blood pressure by about as much as any single antihypertensive drug—but will patients do it?

N. KARANJA, T.P. ERLINGER, L. PAO-HWA, E.R. MILLER 3RD, AND G.A. BRAY

PATIENT INFORMATION Ten tips to help you control your blood pressure 754

EDITORIAL

A DASH-like diet can decrease cardiovascular risk, but barriers to implementation exist 755

Making dietary changes and sticking to them is necessary but difficult.

B.J. HOOGWERF
