FROM THE EDITOR ......................................................................................... 741
Why not a shot of prevention?
Last year the flu season was surprisingly mild, but this should not lull us into a laddishical approach to offering vaccination to all of our patients.

B.F. MANDELL

1-MINUTE CONSULT ................................................................................ 746
Should N-acetylcysteine be used routinely to prevent contrast-induced acute kidney injury?
Its routine use is not supported at this time, but there is evidence to suggest giving it to patients with baseline renal dysfunction.
